Cherry Blossom time in Japan

- 1 If you go to Japan in March or April you are almost certain to see the Cherry Blossom festivals which take place all over the country every spring. Most people agree that viewing the new blossom on cherry trees has been a favourite Japanese custom since at least the 7th century CE, though some historians claim it began as early as the 3rd century CE. When it first started,
- 5 Japanese people used to gaze at the blossom on the cherry trees, which inspired some of them to write poems. The cherry trees were cultivated for their outstanding beauty. These days, the festival not only marks the beginning of spring, but also the start of the academic year and the financial year. The trees blossom for very short periods, during which time special parties, called hanami, are held. These are parties at which people view the blossoms, socialise and eat
- 10 special foods, such as dango, a chewy snack made of rice flour. Some people take their own food whilst others buy food from street vendors. Parks in the Japanese capital of Tokyo are the most popular places for people to view the cherry blossom, but of course the parks can get very busy. The historical parts of the city of Kyoto are also very popular. For people who don't like noise and crowds of people, there are also quieter places, like the mountains, where they can view the
- 15 blossom. In fact, everywhere in Japan there are cherry trees: in parks, castle grounds, gardens and even in school playgrounds. The blossom of the cherry tree is Japan's national flower and there are more than four hundred types of cherry tree, or Sakura, in the country. However, these cherry trees are different from those elsewhere in the world because they do not produce fruit. The Cherry Blossom festivals are so important to Japanese culture that meteorologists
- 20 are responsible for checking the movement of the Sakura Zensen, the warm weather front which facilitates the blossoming of the trees.

Writing

1 Read this description of a five-day trek in Nepal. Put the paragraphs in the correct order by writing Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday in a–e. The first day is completed for you.

Five days in Nepal

a Sunday

As soon as I woke up, I opened my window and saw the mountains for the first time. They looked amazing! We started our trek after breakfast. Walking uphill was tiring, but downhill was worse. My legs wouldn't stop shaking. We stopped for lunch and at six o'clock we reached our first night's camp.

b

When I got up, I felt fantastic after yesterday's walk! Today was a rest day, so we sat around reading and sleeping before Wednesday's trek.

That first night, I slept very well. Again we started walking straight after breakfast but today it was all uphill. Sometimes breathing was quite difficult. I was very glad when we reached our lodge. There were real beds! Around the lodge, a local festival was taking place. There were traditional arts and crafts on display, and beautifully dressed musicians performing the most wonderful music.

Even though my bed was uncomfortable, I was so tired that I slept really well. This morning we left at sunrise and walked for three hours. After an early lunch, we continued for another three hours, all downhill, until we reached the place we had started from five days ago! It was the end of our trek!

e

Sadly, we left the lodge with its beds and showers. After about an hour we were lost and asked villagers for directions. An old woman helped us by drawing a map on the ground. Eventually, we arrived at that night's camp late and absolutely exhausted.

MODULE 1: Getting together

Family celebrations

Key words

baby shower, crib, expectant, parenthood, pram, replica, separate, silverware, subsequent, transition

Reading

1 Read this article about baby showers in England, and answer these questions.

a Why is the baby shower an important event?

b Why is the baby shower organised by friends or relatives rather than the expectant parents?

The Baby Shower

The baby shower is a tradition that is becoming more and more popular in England. Despite what the name might suggest, the baby shower actually involves giving gifts to new or expectant parents. These gifts are almost always items which are needed to care for the new baby, such as cribs, prams, clothing, 5 or simply toys for the infant. Often, family items, such as clothing or toys which have been inherited from ancestors, are also given. Sometimes silverware, such as silver replicas of toys, are also given to commemorate the birth of the child, though this does not occur if the child is yet to be born. Traditionally, the baby shower is an event for the mother, her female relatives and her friends. However, 10 as the event has evolved it has become more and more common for both sexes to take part, or even for men to have a separate baby shower.

The expectant parents do not organise the baby shower. Instead, it is arranged by a close friend or relative. It is intended to welcome the parents into parenthood. It is also intended to ease this transition, by removing some of 15 the burden placed upon new parents by showing support and friendship. Baby showers are normally only given for the first child, although sometimes smaller events, with fewer gifts, are held for subsequent children.

2 Now answer these questions about the article.

- a Why is the name of the baby shower misleading?
- b What happens if the baby shower is thrown for new parents, rather than expectant parents?
- c What is the purpose of the baby shower?
- d What do some people inherit during baby showers?
.....
- e Who attends the baby shower?
- f Is it common in Kuwait to have a baby shower? Explain.

3 Drawing inferences is like 'reading between the lines'. It is about drawing conclusions based on the details the author provides. In the article, the author states that baby showers for subsequent children tend to be smaller events with fewer gifts. Why might this be?

Method of travel
Sold things they made

Differences now

Houses
Language: Gammon
Cars
Children: school / interests

- 2 Now read the talk and underline the parts of the talk the notes refer to. Did the speaker follow the exact order of his notes?

I am going to tell you something about the nomadic people who live in Ireland.

- They are called Travellers or Tinkers and traditionally they used to travel around the country in horse-drawn caravans selling things they had made. They were particularly well-known for making pans and kettles.
- Now more and more Travellers are moving into modern houses and settling down.
- They still travel, usually in modern cars and lorries now, but not as often as in the past. Their children go to school regularly and do the kinds of things children all over the world do: watch TV, listen to music and have their favourite football teams.
- Travellers have their own language, called Gammon, but this is now dying out as their traditional lifestyle is changing.

2 As you read this article about tea-drinking habits in China, complete the following graphic organiser.

What I know	What I want to find out	What I learnt
.....

TEA – A DAILY NECESSITY

Today, tea is the most popular drink in the world. It is drunk by more people than either coffee or cocoa and the number of people drinking it is increasing year by year. The cultivation of tea plants began in China over two thousand years ago, and from there its popularity quickly spread, first to Japan and then to the rest of the world. Together with silk and porcelain, tea is still one of China's most important exports.

In China, everyone from taxi drivers to civil servants drinks tea daily. Although people drink it at all times of the day and night, it is especially popular after meals. In warm summer weather, people believe it helps them to keep cool and relax, and this is why there are so many traditional tea-houses in Chinese towns and villages, where local people, especially the elderly, meet regularly and chat with their friends. In many towns, tea-houses open in the late afternoon and quickly fill up with students and business people.

There are several special circumstances in which tea is prepared and consumed. In Chinese society, people show respect to one another by offering a cup of tea. They make serious apologies to others by pouring them tea. In the traditional Chinese marriage ceremony, both the bride and groom kneel in front of their parents and serve them tea as an expression of gratitude for bringing them up well. The parents will usually drink a small portion of the tea and then give the couple a red envelope, which symbolises good luck.

3 Look at the article and the Factfile. Are these True (T) or False (F)? Justify your answers.

- a Tea is not as popular as coffee.

- b 90% of the world's tea is grown in China.

- c People don't drink tea in the summer because it makes them feel hot.

- d People in Japan started drinking tea from around 500-600 CE.

- e People in Arab countries started drinking tea later than people in China and Japan.

- f The word for 'tea' is the same in many languages.

Writing Describing scenes in detail

1 Match descriptions A and B with the postcard scenes below.

A The sea looks deep blue. There are waves coming on to the beach, but the sea looks calm. There is a hill in the background and it doesn't look remote. There are white clouds on the horizon, but we know it is a sunny day because a man is sitting on the beach with a parasol. He is wearing shorts and a T-shirt and looking towards the horizon. There are also two little children behind the man, playing in the sand. They have plastic toys with them and they are also wearing light clothes but have caps on their heads. They look very enthusiastic and joyful. There are no buildings or cars in this photo.

B Starting from the far right, we see a small hill that seems bare. Then there are a few buildings that are far away, but as we look to the left the buildings get taller and nearer and are surrounded by palm trees. The last building is barely showing but looks huge and is directly on the beach. We know that it's nighttime because the hill is dark, the buildings are lit up and the sky is dark blue. There are people sitting on the beach, which looks sandy, or walking along peacefully. There is also a young man helping his little boy build a nice sand castle.

Progress test 1

Reading

1 Read the following advice about passing your driving test. Underline where the writer reassures and encourages the reader.

Passing your driving test – some simple advice

- Talk to people who have taken their test recently. Get them to tell you about their experience and ask them for their advice.
- Read about what to expect in the test. You can find useful books in libraries and articles on Internet websites.
- 5 ● Don't book your driving test until you feel confident. If you don't feel confident, ask your driving instructor for more practice.
- Try to get a good night's sleep before the day of the test.
- Don't worry if you feel a bit nervous. This can help you concentrate on your driving.
- On the day of the test, arrive at the test centre early. Give yourself plenty of time to relax and prepare yourself mentally.
- 10 ● Turn off your mobile phone. The last thing you want is for someone to phone you just before or actually during the test.
- During the test, drive normally. Everybody makes a few mistakes when they're driving, so don't try to drive perfectly.
- 15 ● If you don't understand something that the driving examiner tells you to do, ask him or her to tell you again.
- If you make a mistake, forget about it and go on driving as well as you can. You won't fail because of one or two small mistakes.
- And if you fail, don't get upset. Most learners have to take their test two or three times before they pass.

Language practice

1 Choose the correct verbs in this story.

I got up very early on Tuesday after a long sleepless night. It was the day when I had to take my driving test. I tried to remember all the road signs I (1) (studied / had studied) last night and I (2) (could / managed to) recall most of them. My dad took a day off work to accompany me. We (3) (could / were able to) get there on time despite the traffic. I was extremely worried although I (4) (was / had been) very well-prepared for it. I (5) (waited / had waited) for my turn for about an hour, and during this time, I tried to benefit from the experiences and mistakes of the ones who (6) (came / had come) before me. Finally, my turn arrived. I got into the car and I was asked to park it. I (7) (shouldn't / wasn't able to) remember all the instructions I (8) (was / had been) told, but I (9) (could / managed) to park the car pretty well. I was asked some questions about road signs and I was surprised that I (10) (could / would) answer them all correctly. Four days later, Dad came home, bringing with him my driving licence. I felt very proud for (11) (being able / managing) to pass my driving test the very first time.

MODULE 2: Communication

Communicating

Key words

chime, illiteracy, inaccessible, integrate, lifeline, mailbag, transcribe

Reading

- 1 Look at the map and photograph. Where are they from? Do you think communicating is more challenging for people living in places like this?

- 2 Read the article below. Do you think it is a successful postal service?

Letters to the mountains

Although the Internet has been celebrated for its unrivalled success in bringing the world closer together, not everyone in the world has access to a computer. For many people the Internet and sending e-mails are an abstract technology that does not relate to their everyday lives, and instead they favour writing and posting letters in the traditional way. But the postal authorities in Himachal Pradesh, a state in the north of India, have introduced a new service for their customers which integrates traditional mail and e-mail. People write their letters, then deposit them at their local post office. There, they are transcribed and then sent by e-mail to post offices in other parts of the country. Here, the e-mails are printed out and taken by the postman to their final destination.

Some of these letters, however, which are addressed to very remote places, like the Himalayas, have to be taken by hand to their destinations. They are carried by 'mail runners' who travel long distances on foot, often through mountains or other inaccessible areas. These postmen, who wear special uniforms and carry a mailbag and a bell, were introduced by the Indian post office over 150 years ago. There are now over 1600 'mail runners' in the territory of Himachal Pradesh.

There is often an atmosphere of excitement when the chime of a postman's bell is heard in a village, some of which rarely see outsiders due to their distant locations. The runners also often bring news from other villages and from the outside world. Illiteracy is often high these days, so a runner may have the added responsibility of reading the contents of the letter to the recipient, if they cannot read it for themselves. The runners of Himachal Pradesh are therefore clearly more than just a postal service. They are a lifeline between the villages and the rest of the world.

3 Read the article again and answer these questions.

- a In which part of India is Himachal Pradesh?

To the Director of Study Abroad,

Re: Application for the International Exchange Programme

I am writing to apply to join the International Exchange Programme, beginning September 2009. I am currently studying for a BA in Economics at City University and I believe studying abroad will provide an excellent opportunity to enhance my skills. Please find my CV and application form attached. If you require any further information, please feel free to contact me.

I look forward to hearing from you in the near future.

Yours faithfully,

Omar

Dear Omar,

Thank you for your application to our International Exchange Programme. The Study Abroad committee will be spending the next few weeks reviewing everyone's applications. All applicants will receive notification of our final decision by letter on August 31st. In the meantime, if you have any additional questions please contact our Study Abroad Officer at studyabroad@cityuni.com.

While we consider your application, here is a mini-prospectus for you to study further. If you no longer feel this programme is right for you, please inform us as soon as possible.

- Through the International Exchange Programme you are given the opportunity to study for three to twelve months at a university in another country. The academic work you complete abroad will be credited towards your final degree. Students who wish to apply for our exchanges must have at least a grade B average.
- It is a great chance to immerse yourself in the language, lifestyle and culture of another country and to broaden your experience during your studies. You don't have to be a language student to take part and you will receive additional funding to cover travel and accommodation. All other costs must be met by the student.
- New programmes are regularly introduced, so you should contact your chosen department for the most up-to-date information. Programmes currently available include Engineering, Biological Sciences, Computer Science, Economics, History, Law, Mathematical Sciences and Business.

We suggest that you explore their websites. There are also some catalogues available in the Study Abroad Office, Room G09.

We hope you feel this exciting opportunity is right for you. Thank you again for your application and good luck.

Yours sincerely

The Director of Study Abroad,
City University

1 Read the article about the history of ballpoint pens and answer these questions.

a When were the first biros produced?

b How much did the first American ballpoint pens cost?

c In which country were Bic pens first produced?

d How does a ballpoint pen work?

Ballpoint pens: a short history

In the early 1940s, a Hungarian journalist called Laszlo Biro visited a newspaper office. He watched the production process and was amazed at how quickly the printing ink dried on the paper. It was then that Biro decided to design a pen which used quick-drying ink instead of the normal ink which traditional fountain pens used and which took a long time to dry.

In 1943, Laszlo and his brother, who was a chemist, produced the first 'biros'. The pens became an instant success – mainly because the ink dried quickly and they were stronger than normal ink pens, but also because they worked in planes at high altitude. The pens were so effective that they were adopted by the Royal Air Force of the United Kingdom, whose crews found them far more reliable during flights than older fountain pens.

Two years later, an American company produced similar pens, but because of the technology involved, these first ballpoint pens were very expensive, at $10 each.

In 1949, Marcel Bich, who had previously purchased the patent to the Biro pen, produced the first cheap ballpoint pens in France. These 'Bic' pens eventually sold on the American market for only 10 cents each. The Bic company has been successfully making ballpoint pens ever since. So successful was Bich's product that the Bic pen has become a recognised icon of modern industrial design, even appearing in museums and galleries as an object of cultural significance.

The most important part of a ballpoint pen is the ball. As it moves across a piece of paper, the ball revolves in its socket and transfers quick-drying ink onto the paper. This mechanism is very important. If the ball is too tight in the socket, the ball will not move. If it is too loose, the ink will dry up. Ballpoint pens can write in many different situations, but they cannot write upside down, because the ink needs gravity to move down on the ball.

Although the successful design of the ballpoint is generally attributed to Laszlo Biro, many other attempts were made in the years preceding Biro's design.

It has even been argued that Galileo Galilei produced a design for the ballpoint pen in the 17th century.

b Why is it a good idea to recycle old mobile phones?

What happens to your mobile phone when you are finished with it?

Action	What happens?	Advantage	Disadvantage
Give to friend or younger sibling	Phone is passed on and used again. Easy and friendly way to dispose of unwanted items.	Phone is still used and recycled. Is a good gift.	Could be misused. 'People may call old phone expecting to talk to you.'
Return phone to shop	Phone is returned to company in exchange for discount on new phone model. Shops ask for old phones to be returned when purchasing new ones.	Reduces cost of purchasing upgrade.	Shops don't always have return policy. Phones need to be in full working order.
Throw phone away	Phone is simply binned as rubbish, can end up in landfill. Old phones, which appear broken, are often binned.	Easy and hassle free.	Disposable batteries can damage the environment. Phones can often be restored.
Recycle phone	Phone is handed in at recycling point. Is seen as a preferable alternative to simply binning phones. Phones are cleaned, repaired and recycled.	Prevents waste. Some charities can benefit from phone recycling.	Recycling facilities can be hard to find.
Sell phone to specialist company	Phone is mailed off to specialist companies who clean, repair and recycle all or parts of the phone. May see TV advert for companies who reclaim phones. Second-hand phones often sent to places like Eastern Europe.	Get money in exchange for something you no longer want.	Often don't receive much money for them.

2 Now, read the table. Choose two of the rows in the table and rewrite the information contained therein as a paragraph of text. Use the example below as a guide.

Some people give their old phones to their friends or younger siblings to ensure their phone is not wasted and is still being used. This is a good idea as recycling the phone in this manner prevents waste and provides a good gift. However, problems may arise if people continue to call your old phone expecting to talk to you.

1 Read the following conversation about the advantages and disadvantages of using a phone. Which speaker is in favour of mobile phones? Which is against? And which is unsure?

- A: I'm so glad I got my new phone. It's got so many great features.
B: Like what?
A: Well, it records video, takes photos and it accesses the Internet. It's amazing.
C: That sounds like a waste of money to me.
B: What do you mean?
C: Well, who needs a phone like that? Honestly, I think mobile phones are pointless.
B: I wouldn't go that far, but I know what you mean. There are some negative things about mobile phones.
A: You're both wrong. Mobile phones are so useful. I can always call my friends, or surf the Internet wherever I am.
B: Yes, that's true, but they're quite expensive.
C: Too right! Mobile phones are a waste of cash. Who wants to be contactable all the time? I feel sorry for businessmen. I bet they don't get any time to themselves nowadays.
B: That's a good point, but being able to contact people is normally beneficial.
A: Exactly. Now businesspeople don't have to stay in the office all day. They can work wherever they want. Besides, there are other uses for mobile phones. What if there's an emergency or something? Then you'd be happy to have a mobile phone.
C: Maybe, but then people have always had accidents and only recently had mobile phones. Doesn't that show that they're unnecessary? I think mobile phones change your life, and not for the better. People spend more time chatting on the phone than talking to their own families. Mobile phones can even cause accidents.
B: What do you mean?
C: Have you never noticed the number of people who talk on their phones when driving? I'm sure that must cause loads of accidents.
A: Hmm, I don't think they cause that many accidents. I'm sure the advantages outweigh any problems.
B: I'm not sure. Either way, I don't think you need such a flashy phone.

Reading

1 Read the article about speech recognition programmes and complete the statements below.

A Last year, Fahd had a serious car accident, in which he nearly died. Although he survived, he lost the use of his hands in the accident. As a computer programmer, Fahd used to spend all day at work using a computer keyboard. But how has he managed since his accident? Amazingly, although injured, Fahd continues to work as a computer programmer. Using new speech recognition software, Fahd now talks to his computer, and no longer uses a traditional keyboard. However, you don't have to be injured like Fahd to use speech recognition technology. Talking to a computer is quicker than using a keyboard, and everybody would find speaking a more natural way of communicating than writing.

B 10 The first speech recognition programmes could not change speech into written language but they could obey spoken commands, like 'Close' or 'Save document'. The most modern programmes can recognise continuous speech, but users must read a few test texts to train the programme to understand the sound of their voice. This type of speech recognition programme, which has a very large vocabulary, would only understand the person who had 'trained' it. There are simpler programmes which are able to understand anybody who uses them, but these have only a very small vocabulary. Systems like these are used in telephone information services, where users are given a small choice of words to say.

1 Answer the following questions and then read the article about the power of the media.

- a What do you think are the advantages and disadvantages of the media ?

- b Give a real life example that affirms the freedom of the press in Kuwait.

The power of the media

The media, known as the fourth pillar of democracy, has a huge impact on society. The effects are, of course, positive as well as negative. It is up to individuals to decide whether they think the overall influence of the media on our lives is positive or negative.

Looking on the bright side, the media results in information on the latest events reaching people, even in the remotest corners of the country, in just a matter of minutes. The easy and swift availability of any given information makes the media one of the most reliable sources for forming public opinion and becoming a channel of communication. Furthermore, the media brings into the open the innumerable achievements that are going on in the country. It can make heroes out of ordinary men and women. It acts as a deterrent to corrupt practices. The media has significantly promoted social causes like literacy, health management, AIDS awareness, etc.

However, the media can adversely affect the thinking capability of individuals and encourage negative or destructive thinking patterns in the society as a whole. As already stated, the media has the power to form and alter opinions. This means the media can portray an ordinary event so negatively that it may force people to think or act in quite an inappropriate way. Moreover, the media can sometimes go out of its way to advertise or glorify certain issues. Usually, a detrimental message is packaged in a positive way and is made available to the public.

Kuwait has one of the most vocal and transparent media in the Arab world. As a primary regulator of the media, the 1991 Kuwaiti constitution guarantees freedom of press, but only within the limits of the law. Its dedication to the concept of freedom of speech is fundamental to democracy and Kuwait's ties with the West. In 2007, Kuwait was ranked second in the Middle East in the Freedom of Press Index.

Reading

- 1 Read this article about educational television programmes written by a 17-year-old student and answer the following questions.

Educational television programmes

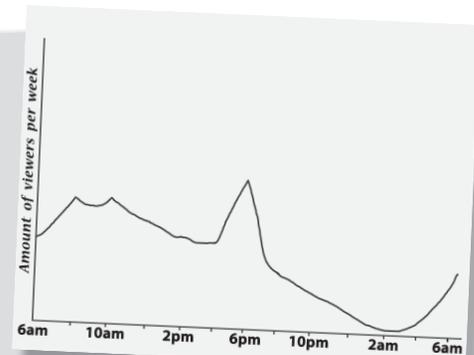

Recent data indicates that, on average, children spend approximately three hours a day watching television. Although this figure may seem staggering at first, after a quick survey amongst my fellow classmates I realised the accuracy of this statistic.

In view of this, I believe that broadcast television stations have a responsibility to serve the educational needs of children when scheduling their core programming, including specifically designed programmes that can be viewed both in and outside the classroom.

On average, we watch television programmes two or three times a week at my school. Television can be a valuable teaching aid, especially when we are studying other cultures or languages. For example, a geography lesson on Sri Lanka can be greatly enhanced by viewing a documentary about the country and its customs. Every week in one of our French lessons, we watch a programme about a family who lives in Paris. Primarily, this helps us practise listening to spoken French. However, I also feel it helps me relate to my studies more, and improves my concentration.

Pre-recorded programmes are also commonly used in maths and science lessons. The teachers themselves record them late at night, as educational programmes are rarely shown at prime time. The teacher makes sure the maths and science shows do not contain any new lessons, and are instead used as a revision tool. This helps us visualise what we have been learning; for example, I found it much easier to understand fractional distillation after I had seen the process on video.

I definitely feel that the programmes we are shown at school have a greater educational value than most children's programmes. Although they are fun, we don't learn much from them. Public broadcasters should be injecting more education into children's entertainment, especially during after-school hours, when the majority of viewers are students.

Writing Reviewing a TV programme

- 1 Read these brief reviews of television programmes which students wrote for a school magazine and fill in the table. Give reasons for your answers.

News World

News World is on for twenty minutes every day at four o'clock in the afternoon. It reports on current news stories from all over the world. The main reason I enjoy the programme is that the news stories are more interesting for young people than the stories on the main news programmes. The reporters describe what is happening very clearly and explain the background to the stories of the day. At the end of the programme, there is always five minutes of sports news which shows highlights of all the important national and international events.

Kuwait's Gardeners

Kuwait's Gardeners is my favourite programme because it gives tips about growing and looking after all kinds of plants, from garden flowers to indoor plants and even trees. It's on every Saturday evening at eight o'clock and is filmed mainly in parks and people's gardens and houses. People talk about their favourite plants and ask a group of experts for help if they have any problems. It's really a programme for adults, but I find it very interesting.

Good Morning!

Good Morning! is definitely my favourite entertainment programme on television at the moment. It's on once a week, at 7 a.m. on Friday mornings. It is a live programme that travels to local events and festivals across Kuwait. It also interviews artists from different regions across the country and it broadcasts national events, too. It's different from other entertainment programmes because it's educational as well as entertaining. That's why I like it so much.

Name of programme	When is it on?	What is it about?	What do I like about it?

anticipation, cast, everyone's a critic, soundtrack, up to scratch

Reading

1 Read this article about film reviews and answer these questions.

- a How has film reviewing changed since the rise of information technology?

- b What qualities do you think make a good film critic?

The next generation of critics

Since the beginning of the film industry, film reviews have been an essential way of advising us which films we should see, and which we should avoid. With the increasing rise of Internet journalism, it could be argued that 'everyone's a critic' nowadays. Whether you're writing for an online magazine, newspaper, fan forum, or even your own blog, it's never been easier to share your opinions.

- 5 However, it's the quality that counts, not the quantity, and film reviews should always be well-written. Remember, you are judging somebody else's creativity, so your own should be up to scratch too! Here is some advice for young writers who think they have some opinions to share:

- 10 Whilst you are watching your chosen film, keep a notepad and pen handy so you can note down your ideas and any memorable moments or quotes. Write down what you think of the plot. You may be impressed by the special effects, but without a decent storyline, the effects are meaningless. Most reviews are only 250-500 words, so don't waste time retelling the story.

B -----

- 15 What do you think of the acting? Did the actors have good chemistry? Were they appropriately cast? It's important not to be biased when you are reviewing. Even though the lead character may be played by your favourite actor, it doesn't necessarily mean they are suited to this film.

C -----

There are many ways to tell the same story, and it's the director's decision how to present each scene to the audience. Do you think the story could have been more interesting or enjoyable? Or were you waiting for each new scene with anticipation, hoping it would be as good as the last?

D -----

- 20 Think about the people who are part of a film's production team, such as editors, costume designers and composers. There are many elements to a good film. Which element did you think stood out the most? Most film award ceremonies have special awards for soundtracks, make-up, special effects, etc., so you should consider them too before you write your review.

E -----

- 25 Don't be shy – the most respected reviewers are always the most honest. Everyone may have told you the film was rubbish, but if you enjoyed it, say so! After you have written your review, don't forget to reread and edit it before printing your final version.

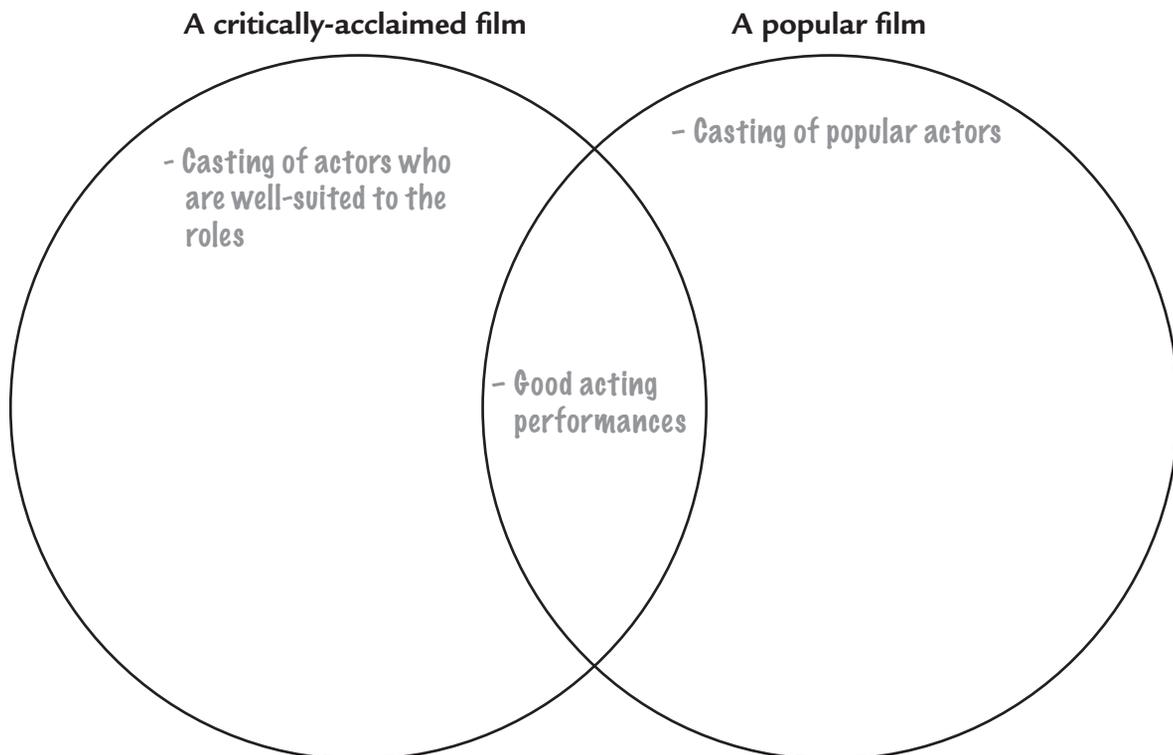

2 Read the article again and match the paragraph headings 1–5 below with the five paragraphs A–E in the article.

- 1 Character analysis
- 2 Honesty is the best quality
- 3 Enjoy the direction
- 4 Don't forget the others!
- 5 The story is important

3 Which words from the article match these definitions?

- a a personal website, most typically written as an ongoing narrative [A]
- b to choose actors for roles in a play, film, etc. [B]
- c have an opinion about something, often unfairly [B]
- d convenient to use; close at hand [A]
- e the plot or narrative of a film or TV programme [C]
- f the feeling of looking forward to something eagerly [C]
- g a person who connects shots to form a film [D]
- h regarded highly [E]

Writing Reviewing a film

1 Read the review of Moustapha Al-Akkad's Al Resala. Have you seen this film?

If yes: do you agree with this review? Did you learn anything new about the film?

If no: what do you think is missing from the review? Do you want to see this film now?

The acclaimed producer/director Moustapha Al-Akkad has often described Al Resala (1977) as his 'labour of love'. And the rewards of Al-Akkad's hard work are clear in this almost three-hour epic, which tells the story of the birth of Islam, from the Prophet Mohammed's (PBUH)* first revelations to his passing away. The film follows the Prophet's (PBUH) story, beginning

5 with the Prophet (PBUH) and a handful of believers, and ending with a miraculous triumph of faith. Such an important story may seem impossible to script, but the plot is well-written and faithful to its origins. The characters are portrayed magnificently, and the dialogue is never flat or dull. The final cut was even approved for accuracy by Al Azhar Al-Sharif.

10 As a believer himself, Moustapha Al-Akkad clearly took meticulous care in translating this story to the big screen. Filmed in Libya and Morocco, the production team took four and a half months to build a replica of Makkah and Madinah as they would have appeared during the life of Prophet Mohammed (PBUH). The 400 members of the cast and crew lived there for the duration of the filming. The results are breathtaking. Although dated compared to today's digital special effects, the cinematography is remarkable, and you feel as if you are 15 being presented with a genuine representation of life at that time. The desert battle scenes are unlike any others in the history of cinema.

Al Resala is a film of epic proportions. However, the film is not only worthy for its dramatic scenery and special effects. The chemistry between the actors is outstanding, and the cast are clearly committed to their individual roles as well as establishing a rapport as an ensemble.

20 There is a particularly standout performance from Anthony Quinn, who plays Hamza, the Prophet's (PBUH) uncle. Other lead roles include Irene Papas as Hind and Michael Ansara as Abu Sufyan. Al-Akkad simultaneously filmed Arabic and English versions of the film, as he felt it was important to respect the differences between the acting styles of both languages.

The composer Maurice Jarre (Lawrence of Arabia, Doctor Zhivago, A Passage to India) wrote 25 an original score for the film, which complements the epic grandeur of the production. It was nominated for an Oscar in 1977 for Best Music, Original Score, immediately after the film's release.

Although over 30 years old, Al Resala is still celebrated today. It is a classic piece of cinema, and provides an example of the production values modern film-makers should be striving 30 towards. Great acting, striking cinematography and an unforgettable soundtrack combine seamlessly to create a beautiful and extremely moving work, with the ultimate purpose of creating a respectful and deeply engaging representation of the life of the Prophet (PBUH). This is Al-Akkad's achievement, an achievement that is likely to endure throughout future generations.

* PBUH: 'Peace be upon him.'

1 Choose the correct word in each line of this article about video-conferencing. Write the word you have chosen in the space at the end of the line.

What is video-conferencing?

Video-conferencing is a method of / to working which lets two or more people in / on different places see and hear each other at the same time. As well as allowing people to / of talk and listen to each other, it is also possible to share documents on the / their computers, such as Internet pages and software. Video-conferencing technology has / have been used in business situations for / since several years, but it is also used by / in different ways in schools, colleges and universities.

Video-conferencing can be used / using as a teaching method by teachers or can be used for / to let guest speakers or experts in other cities or countries talk at / to pupils and students. Because the technology allows two-way communication, pupils and / of students can ask and answer questions, and can discuss things to / with each other. Video-conferencing also allows groups of schools at / in different parts of a country or in different countries to work in / on projects together. This is more / much cheaper and easier than organising real visits. A video-conferencing system needs any / some basic equipment: a screen and / or monitor, a camera, a microphone and a speaker.

Communication can take / taking place using an Internet connection.

Accidents

Key words

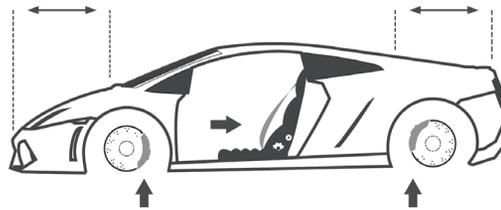

bias, collision, considerably, foolproof, retain, skid

Reading

1 Read this article about car safety and answer these questions.

a What can happen in an accident if a car driver is not wearing his/her seat belt?

b Do you think that car makers prevent danger in all accidents?

Road accidents kill and injure thousands of people every year so car makers are always trying to think of new ways to improve safety for drivers and passengers. Seat belts and anti-lock brakes are two examples of the improvements that have been introduced to vehicles in recent years.

Cars have had seat belts for many years, first in the front seats, then later in the back seats. Seat belts are designed to retain people in their seats, and so prevent or reduce injuries suffered in a crash. Without them, a driver or front-seat passenger can be thrown through the windscreen in a head-on collision. In modern vehicles, seat belts are also designed to work as the key component in wider injury prevention measures and safety systems. These systems include features, such as airbags and head restraints, which will not be as effective in reducing the risk of injury if an occupant is not wearing a seat belt.

The anti-lock brake system (ABS) helps drivers to avoid accidents by making cars stop more quickly than those with ordinary brakes. Ordinary brakes can lock if the driver presses his foot too hard or too suddenly. The ABS prevents the wheels from locking and this means cars do not skid. Since their introduction, anti-lock braking systems have evolved considerably. Recent versions not only prevent wheel-lock under braking, but also electronically control the front-to-rear brake bias.

In addition to improvements in car safety features, car manufacturers have also strengthened the body of the car. If the car is in an accident the people in it will not be crushed. However, the front and back parts of cars have been weakened, so that if a car is in a crash these 'crumple zones', rather than the passengers inside, will absorb as much of the crash energy as possible in frontal and rear accidents. There is no doubt that, in the future, manufacturers will continue to make their cars safer. However, safety devices do not offer a foolproof guarantee: only when everyone drives more carefully will road accidents become a thing of the past.

2 Read the article again on page 70. Which of the following headings could be a suitable title for the article?

- a Seat belts
- b Car safety
- c The cars are safe but what about the drivers?
- d Anti-lock braking system (ABS)

3 What do the words in italics in these sentences from the article on page 70 refer to?

- a Without them, a driver or front-seat passenger can be thrown through the windscreen ... (line 7)
- b The anti-lock brake system (ABS) helps drivers to avoid accidents by making cars stop more quickly than those with ordinary brakes. (line 13)
.....
- c If the car is in an accident the people in it will not be crushed. (line 19)
.....

4 Are these statements True (T) or False (F)? Justify your answers.

- a In modern cars airbags and head restraints have replaced seatbelts.
- b ABS systems are the same today as when they were originally produced.
.....
- c 'Crumple zones' allow the front and back parts of a car to be crushed in an accident.

6 In your notebooks, write a response to the text in exercise 5 by listing some solutions for preventing car accidents.

7 Complete the text using the verb form of the words in parenthesis.

Yesterday was an interesting day. First, I had to sit an extremely difficult maths test. The exam last month was too short, so the teacher decided to (1) (long) it by two hours. On the way home, I was arguing with my brother. Bit by bit, the argument began to (2) (sharp). The bus driver decided to go downtown in order to (3) (short) the trip. There were constructions to (4) (wide) the road. The driver was driving very carefully because big black clouds were (5) (dark) the sky. Suddenly, we saw a boy crossing the street. Luckily, the driver was driving slowly and stopped the bus in time.

We had just come out of school. Dad came to pick us up as usual. On the way home, I was chatting with my friends in a loud voice and my dad was talking with his boss on the mobile phone. As I was looking out of the window I noticed that the traffic light had turned red and there was a young man crossing the street. I tried to warn my father but it was too late. He was driving too fast and couldn't stop the car before it hit the man. Of course, we all stopped talking and went to help the man who was lying on the road. My dad called the ambulance from his mobile phone. After about five minutes the ambulance arrived and took the man to hospital. A couple of minutes later, my dad and I arrived at the hospital to check on the young man. The police came to the hospital to investigate the accident. It was the most awful day of my life.

The planet in danger

Key words

hybrid, kidnap, latter, nominal, toenail, tusk

Reading

- 1 Read the article then put the sentences below in the correct place. There are two more sentences than you need.

A fight for survival

A Orangutans were once widespread throughout south-east Asia but now are only found in the wild on the islands of Borneo and Sumatra. Ten years ago there were approximately forty thousand orangutans in the wild. There are many reasons why orangutans have become endangered. One important reason is habitat destruction. Our planet is continually changing, causing habitats to be altered and modified.

B Every year thousands of acres of trees are cut down for wood and to give farmers new land to grow their crops. Serious forest fires also destroyed large areas of forest in the 1990s. Orangutans depend on the forest for shelter and food and need large areas to find insects and fruit to eat.

C Because of the reduction in the size of the forests where they live, orangutans sometimes eat some of the crops that farmers grow. Therefore, it is common for people to kill adult orangutans to protect their crops, and to kidnap and sell baby orangutans as pets. However as adults, orangutan can be aggressive and difficult to keep.

D Since the start of the 20th century, poaching has significantly reduced the population of African elephants in certain regions. Currently, the African Elephant has nominal governmental protection, but poaching is still a major threat to the African Elephant's survival. Illegal hunting creates orphans, who are unable to care for themselves, and removes mature elephants from the population, thereby preventing the birth of new elephants.

E The latter has a longer and narrower jaw bone, rounder ears, a different number of toenails, straighter and downward-pointing tusks, and is of a considerably smaller size. However, hybrids between the two species commonly occur.

- a Due to the trade in animal parts, many species suffer high rates of exploitation.
- b For poor people living in these areas, orangutans can bring in money, but can also be a threat.
- c There are now around twenty thousand, and this number is decreasing every year.

Dynamic vs. Stative Verbs

- Dynamic verbs may also be referred to as action verbs because they refer to actions.
I usually go to school by bus.
This morning, I am going to school by bus.
- We can use dynamic verbs in simple and continuous tenses:
- Some verbs are never or hardly ever used in continuous form. We call such verbs stative verbs (they express thoughts, beliefs or feelings.)
Thinking verbs: know, realise, suppose, understand, agree, believe, expect, suspect, think.
Feeling verbs: fear, hate, like, love.
- Here is a list of common verbs which are not often used in the continuous form. Many stative verbs are occasionally used in the continuous form in order to emphasise the idea of change or development.
I feel we shouldn't do it.
I am feeling sick.

*The Editor
Today Magazine*

Dear Sir,

We are very grateful to you for bringing this problem to the attention of your readers.

But the most important way they could help would be to tell everyone they know about the situation of the orangutans and how their forest habitats are being destroyed.

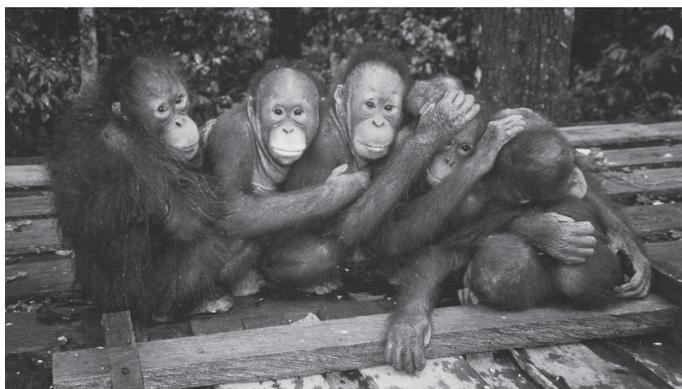

The simplest thing to do would be to collect money to send to one of the centres which protect these amazing animals and help to keep them in the wild.

This letter is to everyone who is worried about animals in the world which are in danger of extinction.

We would like to ask your readers to think about how they can help to save the orangutans of Borneo and Sumatra. At the moment, there are twenty thousand, but this number is decreasing rapidly. Here are a few suggestions for ways in which people can help.

*Yours faithfully,
Members of the Orangutan Protection Society*

- a describes the decline of the orangutans?
 - b says who the letter is intended for?
 - c suggests something that would be simple for people to do to help?
 - d thanks the editor of Today Magazine?
 - e suggests the best thing people could do to help?

The power of nature

Reading

Only five minutes

Tornadoes are violent, rotating columns of air which are in contact with both the ground and a cloud. Tornadoes can be found in a variety of sizes and intensities, and have been known to reach speeds of up to 400 kph, although speeds of less than 200 kph are far more common. They can occur at any time of the year, last between ten minutes and several hours, and travel anywhere between 3 km and 100 km, depending on their strength. They can cause damage to nature and property and can sometimes be lethal. North America and the Caribbean are tornado hot spots, experiencing an average of a thousand tornadoes every year. They are also frequent in parts of Europe, although European tornadoes are not normally as severe as those in the USA. Tornadoes habitually follow thunderstorms. They start when the storm pulls warm, moist air into itself. The warm air moves upwards but at a certain height the moisture turns into cold water or rain. This rain starts to fall, producing a mixture of rising warm air and falling cold air. Winds turn this mixture into a spinning tube. If the end of this tube touches the ground, a tornado is born.

There are several varieties of tornado, including multiple vortex tornadoes, which have more than one column of spinning air, satellite tornadoes, which are small tornadoes that form around larger ones, and waterspouts, which are tornadoes that form above water.

Although meteorologists can collect information from an increasing amount of sources, such as satellites, radar, weather stations and weather balloons, it is almost impossible to predict exactly when a tornado is going to occur. Because of this it is impossible to fully protect people from tornadoes. However, governments do warn people when they think a tornado is likely, educate them about safety procedures during a tornado and help provide aid and shelter during clean-up operations. They also prepare evacuation plans to get people to safety, and build large communal storm cellars in which several hundred people can be shielded from the worst effects of the storm.

1 Read this article about tornadoes. Are these statements True (T) or False (F)? Justify your answers.

- a Governments cannot do anything to help people until after a tornado occurs.
- b Multiple vortex tornadoes, satellite tornadoes and waterspouts are the only types of tornadoes.
- c The technology that meteorologists use is constantly improving.
- d Any visible wind column is considered a tornado.
- e A landspout is a tornado which forms above solid earth.

The sport of free climbing – climbing rocks using equipement for safety - has grown very popular. Its popularity has increased in part because of advances in climbing equipment that make climbing safer.

The sport presents a phisical and mental challenge with minimal danger.

Because of the potential for serious injury, much specialised safty equipment has been devised, making it a very safe sport in most cases. Detailed knowledge of safety equipment is crutial for safe climbing, however, and requires attension to detail unlike many other sports.

Top-roping, one technic for using the safety equipment, is a rope from the top of the climb that always holds the climber and which makes most slips harmless. In an other technique, lead climbing, the climber attaches the rope to the rock at points along the climb. This is not as safe, but it allows more rootes to be climbed.

How to use equipment safely is best learned from an experienced climber, although some books are available. Aside from having good safety equipment, there are three main tipps for you if you want to go free-climbing:

- Climb with someone in whom you have complete confidance.
- Tell people where you're going to climb.
- Carry a mobile phone with you; it can be extremely helpfull.
- Consult an expert on a suitable place for climbing.

OVER TO YOU teaches English through cross-curricular topics, using prose, stories, listening tasks, games, puzzles and other varied activities.

OVER TO YOU encourages learners to practise communicating with English at every available opportunity.

OVER TO YOU adopts an integrated approach to language teaching.

OVER TO YOU follows the Kuwait Ministry of Education syllabus.

At each level, the course consists of:

- a Student's Book which presents new language for class activities, including pair and group work,
- a Workbook which utilises a variety of activities to practise the language presented in the Student's Book,
- the Teacher's Guide with clear, step-by-step lesson plans, as well as a full explanation of the teaching methodology,
- the CD with all the listening activities.
