Read the following passage, then answer the questions below:

Jack was excited because his new furniture was going to be delivered the next day. Before the furniture came, he and his parents were ready to paint his room. Jack had picked out the colours. He and his parents put on old clothes and got out paint rags and cleaner to get ready for the big job.

They used rollers to paint the walls. Rollers made the paint go on evenly and quickly. But they used brushes for the corners and the edges. That way, paint wouldn't get on the ceiling or the floor. After a few hours, the first coat of paint was getting dry. Jack wanted to put the second coat on right away but his dad explained that the paint would dry better if they waited. When dinner was over, Jack hurried back to his room and got started.

The next morning, the paint in Jack's room was finally dry. The furniture was delivered right after lunch, and Jack couldn't wait to see what it looked like. Jack and his parents assembled the furniture. Jack and his parents were exhausted when they finished because they did a lot of hard work. Jack looked around. "This is great!" he exclaimed. Jack added. "But I'm glad we did it."
